Course Description

The course aims to introduce students to the study of the Spanish language, in relation to the diverse groups of speakers and the social and cultural context in which the discursive practices take place, that are conveyed through different communication styles creating the linguistic and socio pragmatic variations. In addition, it is intended that students become familiar with macro-social phenomena and with micro-level analysis of both face-to-face communication and interaction mediated by new technologies. This approach is intended to provide students with the opportunity to gain a better understanding of the interface between sociolinguistics and pragmatics, as well as the methods used in data collection and analysis as part of the study of language in the social context.

Course Requirements

Students must meet the requirement of 75% attendance to class in order to avoid losing regularity. The attendance control system is electronic. The professor also keeps internal control of attendance, since it is part of the course grade (see Grading Policy). Lack of punctuality (arriving more than ten minutes late or leaving class early) will be considered half-absences. In case of not attending class, it is the students' responsibility to contact their classmates or their professor to find out and complete the assigned tasks for the next class.

Students are expected to actively participate in class and make an oral presentation that must be accompanied by a written text (the topic and date will be agreed with the professor during the course). During the semester, students will have homework and papers assigned for each class, which will be evaluated as detailed below. It is at the professor's discretion to accept late work (having missed the previous class does not justify not completing the assignment).

Grading Policy

Class participation	10%
Preparing assigned readings with comments (3)	15%
Group oral presentations (2)	20%
Mid - Term written exam	20%
Group essay	35%
